Gibson blanks Tigers, 4-0 sets series strikeout record

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Bob Gibson of St. Louis turned in one of the World Series' classic pitching performances Wednesday, setting a record by striking out 17 batters as the Cardinals defeated Denny McLain and the Detroit Tigers 4-0 in the opening World Series game.

Needling one strikeout to equal the mark of 15 set by Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles in the 1963 Series opener, Gibson was at his best in the ninth inning.

(World Series on page 14)

Mickey Stanley opened the frame with a single. However, the St. Louis ace fanned Al Kaline to tie the record, struck out Norm Cash to break it and fired a third strike past Willie Horton for good measure to end the game.

Gibson, a 22-game winner in regular season, yielded only five hits. The Tigers mounted their biggest threat in the sixth inning when Dick McAuliffe's single and Kaline's double put runners on second and third with two out. Gibson bore down and retired Cash on strikes.

The Cards scored three runs off McLain, a 31-game winner, in the fourth inning. Walks to Roger Maris and Tim McCarver put runners on first and second with one out. Mike Shannon's single to left scored Maris.

When Horton fumbled Shannon's drive, McCarver raced to third and Shannon to second. Julian Javier's ground single to right scored both.

McLain was lifted for a pinch hitter in the sixth. He gave up three runs, two of them earned, three hits, walked three and struck out three.

Lou Brock accounted for the final St. Louis run with a seventh-inning homer off Pat Dobson.

Gibson also set a Series mark by pitching his sixth consecutive complete game and tied another by recording his sixth straight victory.

The second game will be played here Thursday, with lefty Mickey Lolich pitching for Detroit and right-hander Nelson Briles for St. Louis.

LBJ withdraws Fortas nomination

WASHINGTON (AP)—In a strongly worded letter to President Johnson deploring attacks on the Supreme Court, Justice Abe Fortas bowed to Senate opposition Wednesday and requested withdrawal of his nomination to be chief justice.

Shortly thereafter, Johnson issued a statement saying that with "deep regret" he was acceding to Fortas's request and withdrawing the nomination.

"I believed when I made this nomination, and I believe now, that he is the best qualified man for this high position," the President said.

Johnson's nomination of his long-time friend and adviser to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren appeared to have been doomed Tuesday when the Senate refused to cut off a filibuster by opponents.

A 45-43 vote to put the Senate's antifilibuster rule into effect was 14 short of the required two-thirds majority of senators voting. And taking into account six additional senators who did not vote but announced their position, the count would have been 47 to 47.

The 58-year-old Fortas, appointed to the Supreme Court by Johnson in 1965, became the first nominee for chief justice to fail of Senate confirmation since 1795, when George Washington's nomination of John Rutledge was rejected 14 to 10.

Referring to the Senate's refusal to cut off a filibuster by opponents of Fortas's confirmation, Johnson said:

"The action of the Senate, a body I revere and to which I devoted a dozen years of my life, is historically and constitutionally tragic."

Supporters of the nomination said Fortas was the first Supreme Court nominee to be denied confirmation by a filibuster.

Nixon backs sea power

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Richard M. Nixon, campaigning on a colonial college campus and then in a Navy city, accused the Democratic administration Wednesday of compromising future American naval strength and permitting the Soviet Union to mount "a major challenge against Western seapower."

Winding up his day of campaigning near the headquarters of the Atlantic Fleet here, the Republican presidential candidate said present defense leaders have failed to develop this nation's nuclear carrier and submarine strength.

Shafer excites partisans with attack on Wallace

LeMay Wallace's selection

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Third party presidential candidate George C. Wallace will name retired Air Force Gen. Curtis E. LeMay as his running mate Thursday morning, sources close to Wallace said Wednesday night.

The blunt-talking, cigar-chewing "Old Ironpants" of World War II flew into Pittsburgh late in the afternoon, but he refused to talk to reporters.

Surrounded by Secret Service men and Wallace campaign aides, he got into a limousine and was driven away.

Later Wallace aides confirmed that LeMay, 61, an advocate of military victory in Vietnam, was Wallace's choice.

Although Wallace refused to comment on LeMay, as he has when other possible candidates were mentioned, he did announce that he would name his man at a news conference at 10 a.m. today in Pittsburgh.

He wouldn't say who it would be, but he said the candidate would be present.

The views of Wallace and LeMay coincide on Vietnam. Both have argued that the United States could win the war if it beefed up the military effort.

LeMay, father of the Strategic Air Command and a famous flying general, is an ardent defender of the airplane. He once said guided missiles would never replace manned planes as weapons because missiles "can't think."

Wallace was given a screaming, foot stomping reception by 8,000 supporters in Pittsburgh's Civic Arena, which borders on the city's biggest Negro ghetto.

A group of 200 hecklers in the balcony chanted "Wallace Go Home! Wallace Go Home!" throughout the speech. Once Wallace walked away from the rostrum, apparently disgusted, then turned around, smiled at the balcony and waved.

"Why don't you go home?" he asked. "I hired the hall."

Dope worth million found

CRANBURY, N.J. (AP)—A Miami, Fla., man was stopped on the New Jersey Turnpike Wednesday night for a routine traffic violation and about one million dollars worth of marijuana was found in his car, state police said.

Oscar Jose Perez, 25, was charged with driving too slow, with possession of marijuana and with possession of a loaded 22 automatic.

Detective William Logan of the state police said Perez' 1967 hardtop car was halted by Trooper James Challenger because Perez was driving too slow.

Gov. Shafer straightens his tie, left, in his room at Mount Airy and then relaxes before addressing a Governor's Night rally sponsored by the Republican County Committee. Shafer flew into the Pocono Mountain Airport at 6:30 Wednesday.

Fred Waring, left, talks with Gov. Raymond Shafer before the second annual Governor's Night Banquet at Mount Airy Lodge, sponsored by county Republicans.

Against splinter parties

SWIFTWATER — A deep mistrust of democratic institutions, Washington decision makers and amongst people themselves is rampant in the American society, Gov. Raymond P. Shafer told a crowd of 874 persons at the second annual Governor's Night banquet in Mt. Airy Lodge.

Gov. Shafer, who began to speak shortly after 11 p.m., lashed out at former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and the Democratic Party in a strong plea for Republican support on November 5.

(Related story on page 13)

Gov. Shafer throughout his off-the-cuff speech repeated time and again the need for new leadership and that the problems facing the nation can only be solved with new leadership.

In an unprecedented attack on Wallace, Shafer said Wallace "is proliferating political parties."

"We can go on or drift backward with a man like George Wallace."

"I think he's doing one of the most harmful things to the American people," Shafer said. He added that Wallace is "using his campaign on fear, hate and prejudice."

"We cannot have that kind of leadership," he said. "Going further on his charge of proliferating the political parties, Shafer said, 'by having three, four or five parties what do we have? We have a coalition government.'"

He explained it would be a kind of government like Belgium, France, Germany and others throughout Europe.

"We can't have that here," Shafer said. "That's why he (Wallace) is a danger to the United States."

Need faith
Shafer stressed that people must have a faith in the presidency and the democratic institutions and indicated that this faith can be renewed with a Republican administration.

The governor stressed that if the nation is to solve all of its problems such as Vietnam, water pollution, air pollution, urban unrest and others, "we need the leadership of Dick Nixon where leadership will overcome emotion."

"It wouldn't be Dick Nixon alone," Shafer added, "it must be a team—the Republican team."

At several points in his speech, Shafer was interrupted by applause.

Shafer said that Hubert Humphrey is so disconcerted about the campaign, "he calls himself the lonesome ranger." He also said Humphrey is preparing a new television campaign recommended by his public relations men which will be entitled, "Mission Impossible."

The governor stressed the future of the nation is in 1968.

Shafer also strongly endorsed Warner Depoy for auditor general, Richard Schweiker for U.S. Senate, John Hannum for superior court and all local congressional and state legislative candidates.

"When you're helping the Republican Party," he said, "you're helping to build a going, dynamic concern."

He also addressed the gathering on Pennsylvania's enlightened government and its progress to such an extent that he commented, "I'm so proud of Pennsylvania I could burst."

Wallace invited to headquarters

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Supporters of former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace for President said they will open a state headquarters here today.

Aides said they hoped Wallace would attend the opening, but did not know definitely if he would.

Wallace, supporters react to comparison with Hitler

By DAVID B. OTTAWAY

Record Washington Bureau

PITTSBURGH — Third party candidate George C. Wallace began fighting back Wednesday against accusations hurled at him by jeering demonstrators and now Vice President Hubert Humphrey that he is a modern day Adolph Hitler.

Upon arriving in Akron, Ohio, Wednesday morning, Wallace called Hitler. "One of the most despicable men in our time" and reminded newsmen that he had fought nazism himself during World War II.

Asked specifically in Pittsburgh about Humphrey's statement concerning his candidacy and the rise to power of Hitler in Nazi Germany, Wallace again reminded that he had fought Nazism and then challenged the vice president "to tell us his war record."

The fact that Humphrey did not fight in World War II has long been a vulnerable and sore point for the vice president. Wallace was a B-29 bomber flight engineer and saw action in the Pacific over Japan.

(Related story, page 12.1)

Everywhere he has gone outside the south on his campaign tour, the former Alabama Governor has been greeted with cries of "Sieg Heil" and placards like "Hitler in '39, Wallace in '68".

Wallace has taken the jeers and signs in stride, dismissing them as the work of "anarchists."

Exclusive report
This is another in a series of exclusive campaign reports for Pocono Record readers by the staff of our Washington Bureau. These specials will appear regularly and include a full page of election review each Monday through Election Day, Nov. 5.

Sometimes, he even tries to make out his accusers as nazis themselves.

For instance in Canton, Ohio, where two hundred black militants and white college students chanting "sieg heil" succeeded in taking their demonstration to the floor of the hall, Wallace shouted at one point:

"I thought they got rid of the nazis in World War II, but I see that we have some here now." Practically the first comment Wallace makes in launching into stock campaign speech is that he is not a racist.

He then goes on to say that both he and his wife were elected governor of Alabama with the support of the majority of Negro voters.

Inevitably he cites the example of Selma, the scene of early sit-ins in the civil rights movement, where 87 percent of the voters in the black wards gave their votes to his wife in 1966.

What he failed to mention is that the only other choice open to Negroes in Alabama in 1966 was to vote for an avowed racist.

The issue of racism and

Wallace has been interjected into every rally Wallace has held so far this week. Each time he has spoken, he has had to deal with black militants chanting "Wallace is a racist" and "sieg heil."

Miraculously, no violence has broken out so far, though in Canton Wednesday it nearly did.

There Negro teenagers, joined by some white college students, came down from the bleachers and began parading around the aisles and shouting "Wallace is a racist" and "Wallace go home" in an auditorium packed with 6,000 of his supporters.

Partisans and opponents, only inches away from each other, hurled insults and screamed out their lungs for ten minutes.

Finally the police clanked the demonstrators out of the hall without incident.

One of the more ominous signs carried by the negro demonstrators said "Wallace as President Means Race War."

Supporters of Wallace interviewed by this reporter along the campaign trail seemed appalled at Humphrey's allegation that Wallace was America's Hitler.

Supporters of former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace for President said they will open a state headquarters here today.

40 verdicts against Karafin

Ex-reporter guilty of black mail

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A jury late Tuesday found former reporter Harry J. Karafin guilty of blackmail and unlawful solicitation.

The jury started its deliberations in the case at 2:10 p.m. and returned its verdict at 4:25 p.m. It found Karafin guilty on 20 bills of blackmail and 20 of unlawful solicitation by an employee.

While waiting for the jury to return to the courtroom, Karafin was overheard to remark: "This, quick, it doesn't look good."

The verdicts were read by the jury foreman, Joseph P. Brennan, a retired accountant.

A court clerk read the charge on each indictment and each time Brennan replied, "We find the defendant guilty."

This was repeated 40 times. While the verdicts were being read, Karafin stood at the defense table, his left arm resting lightly on the bar of the court. He looked around the courtroom and at one point handed his lawyer a ball point pen with which to record the verdicts.

The case went to the jury after a two-hour charge by Judge Robert N.C. Nix Jr.

In his summation, the judge said: "This is a most serious case. The right of the free press is highly regarded in this country."

Karafin was charged with blackmail and unlawful solicitation by an employee. He was accused of using his position as an investigative reporter for the Philadelphia Inquirer to shake down businessmen and persons in the news.

During the charge, the judge said of Sylvan Scolnick, one of the commonwealth's star witnesses who is serving time for bankruptcy fraud: "You must consider the testimony as that from a polluted source, and the testimony of such a source must be carefully scrutinized."

Speaking of the high regard accorded freedom of the press, he said: "Because of his high regard these are few laws governing the press."

"Therefore a violation of that trust or responsibility is a serious matter not only to Harry Karafin but also serious to the community."

"Use your common sense, and without prejudice, without sympathy and without concern for what you consider the law should be, unanimously agree on verdict of guilt or innocence of the defendant."

The judge also gave his definition of blackmail.

"If you find the defendant created or contributed to the creation of forcing an intended victim to be intimidated, and took advantage of his position in the newspaper industry to extort money, then the crime was carried out."

Speaking of the charge of unlawful solicitation by an employee the judge said: "If you find that the Inquirer was aware of it, and consented to it, then the crime has not been made out."

The judge told the jury that if Scolnick had been sentenced under a charge of subornation of perjury, to which he has pleaded guilty, he would not have been permitted to testify.

"If you are convinced of the truthfulness and the facts given by Scolnick, you should not hesitate to act on it."

"In addition to the normal rules of credibility, also consider the weight given to his testimony in the light of his criminal record."

"Did he look like he was telling the truth? Did it tie in?"

The judge also said it is generally known that partners in crime "tend to put the blame chiefly on each other," and added that partners in crime sometimes do tell the truth.

Rusk denounces invasion

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk denounced the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia Wednesday as repugnant and dangerous to world peace, and challenged the Russians to make good their promises of a military withdrawal.

In a major policy speech to the 125-nation General Assembly, interrupted at five o'clock by Vietnam peace shouters, Rusk declared the United States will end the bombing of North Vietnam "the minute we can be confident this will lead toward peace."

He warned the Soviet Union that the United States and its Western allies would not tolerate the threat or use of force against West Berlin or West Germany.

On the Middle East, he urged Israel and the Arabs to take advantage of a "small and precious momentum toward peace" and cooperate with the mission of U.N. envoy Gunnar Jarring.

It was the first policy speech delivered by Rusk at the United Nations since his appointment in 1961. It represented also the policy of an administration which will hand over the reins of government to a new U.S. president in less than four months.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko listened impassively to the 37-minute speech. He and other Communist Bloc leaders did not join in the applause at the conclusion. Gromyko will deliver the Soviet policy speech today.

Six men and three women, ranging in age from 16 to 38, took part in the brief heckling of Rusk. They shouted slogans and displayed banners in the public gallery reading "Stop the War in Vietnam" and "Big Firms Get Rich, GIs Die" before they were removed by U.N. guards.

On the invasion of Czechoslovakia, Rusk declared: "This act has sent a shock wave of indignation and apprehension around the world, and has shaken hopes for better East-West relations."

Sextuplets born in England

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — After 10 years of childless marriage, a woman who had been treated with a fertility drug gave birth on her 30th birthday Wednesday to sextuplets. One of the four girls lived only an hour.

The four girls and two boys, born live and two months premature, weighed between two and three pounds each at Birmingham Maternity Hospital.

The hospital first said the mother and the five surviving babies were well. A later hospital statement gave the babies a 50-50 chance of survival.

The mother, Sheila Ann Thorns, had not yet been allowed to see the babies when she said, "If I just get one or two alive out of this, I shall be happy."

She has spent the last 22 weeks in hospitals and had known since August that she would have six children.

Her husband, Norman, a 33-year-old draftsman, said his wife had taken a fertility drug for the last two years.

"We have wanted children all our married life," he said after seeing his wife in the hospital and bringing her flowers.

British medical authorities said they could not recall a previous case of sextuplets in this country.

They said multiple births have become more common because of the use of fertility drugs.

There have been reports of some 20 sets of sextuplets born in the world since 1960 but several of these were never confirmed.

A Mexican woman gave birth to eight children in March 1967. All died at birth.

There have also been reports of septuplets—seven children—who died shortly after birth.

The Thorns sextuplets were delivered within three minutes by Caesarian section performed by a team of 28 specialists led by Dr. Margaret Shotton, 53, consultant obstetrician at the hospital. The hospital, opened only two months ago, is among the best equipped of its kind in Britain.

Thorns said the couple had picked out five girls' names and five boys' names. They decided on Ian, Roger, Lynne, Julie and Susan for the five survivors.

Dr. Ben Wood, the pediatrician in charge of the babies, said Mrs. Thorns' condition was "satisfactory" and the five surviving babies were extremely frail, but fairly satisfactory.

"Some of them are having special treatment because they were suffering from malnutrition in the womb by having to share with the others," he said. "It will be a week before we know the outcome."

State revenue shows deficit

HARRISBURG (AP) — Tax revenues in the first quarter of the new fiscal year failed by $5.5 million to come up with prior estimates by state fiscal experts professed not to be worried — yet.

Reporting on the deficit Wednesday, Budget Secretary F. Sampson said:

"This trend will result in a cautious approach in fiscal matters for the next two or three months, until a more substantial trend upward or downward can be identified."

If the downward trend continues, Sampson indicated some positive action would be in order to avoid a budget deficit at the end of the fiscal year next June 30. The nature of the action was not specified.

Sampson said general fund revenues of $320.3 million were anticipated in the first quarter ended Sept. 30, but the actual total was $314.8 million.

Contributing greatly to the decline was a drop of $2.1 million in the cigarette tax. Sampson attributed this to a leveling off in sales, not only in Pennsylvania but also nationally.

Inheritance taxes brought in $3.6 million less than expected.

Casey urges Deputy vacate state post

SCRANTON — Robert P. Casey, Democratic candidate for auditor general, urged Gov. Raymond P. Shafer this week to relieve Warner M. Deputy as Secretary of Revenue.

Daniel Bloom

Bloom named new project officer chief

TOBYHANNA — Daniel Bloom has been named major project officer at Tobyhanna Army Depot.

In this capacity, he will be responsible to the depot command for coordinating and accomplishing all depot-wide projects.

Formerly chief of Operations Control Office, he is a graduate of Meyers High School, Wilkes-Barre, and attended Wilkes College.

He is active in social and civic affairs and served as state commander of the Pennsylvania Disabled American Veterans during 1957-58.

He began his Federal service in 1953 at the depot.

A native of Wilkes-Barre, he resides at 233 Winona Rd., Mount Pocono, with his wife, the former Jane Monahan, and children, Daniel III, Patricia, Nancy, William and Thomas.

Gov. Shafer Tuesday urged that Deputy be relieved of his duties as Secretary of Revenue because of the very serious conflict posed by his candidacy for state auditor general.

Deputy, a Pike County Commissioner and native of Milford, is Casey's Republican opponent for the state post.

In his telegram to Gov. Shafer, Casey stated: "I base this recommendation on the possibility that Mr. Deputy, if elected, might face a constitutional barrier that could prevent him from serving as auditor general."

"I bring to your attention new language in Section 10 of Article eight of the Pennsylvania Constitution, as approved by the voters on April 23, 1968. Any Commonwealth official whose approval is necessary for any transaction relative to the financial affairs of the Commonwealth shall not be charged with the function of auditing that transaction after its occurrence."

"Further, Pennsylvania voters clearly indicated that they do not wish any Commonwealth officer to be in a position of auditing his own work when they approved in May, 1967, another constitutional amendment that prohibits a state treasurer from being elected auditor general."

"Clearly, then, Mr. Deputy should not be placed in a position where he would be auditing the $35 million operational expenditures made by his department, auditing the work of men put on the job by himself as secretary of revenue, making final determinations on millions of dollars in tax settlements approved by him as secretary of revenue, and auditing state funds given to Pike County where Mr. Deputy is chairman of the county board of commissioners."

Since Mr. Deputy has not seen fit to resign either his candidacy or position as secretary of revenue — despite the overwhelming conflict of interest involved — I call upon you as chief executive and protector of the public interest to remove Mr. Deputy forthwith as secretary of revenue." Signed: Robert P. Casey.

General visits Army Depot

In addition to all media of paintings, there will be wood marquetry and sculpture in the show. It was reported that there are 251 paid-up members of the library to date. A new classification, a Golden Life Membership, was created, and it was decided that these would be given to those donating $50 to the library.

The Oxford Dictionary and stand were purchased in memory of Miss Katherine Louser, whose dedication to the library helped it through the early days and whose volunteer service totaled hundreds of hours. She also served the board as vice president.

The Book of Memory, purchased by individual gifts from the Board members, was displayed during the meeting. This book is placed in memory of Dr. Harold W. Gilbert, also an active member of the library board.

The board discussed presentation of a "photography, hobby and craft show in the Spring of 1969."

It was noted that any collections may be displayed in the special display case in the library.

PV school appointments are made

BRODHEADSVILLE — Staff appointments for the current school year have been announced by John Nye, principal of Pleasant Valley Junior Senior High Schools as follows:

Mrs. Sarah Jones from the English department will serve as Publicity Director and will act as liaison between school activities and the press.

Donald Rinker will serve as chairman of the English department.

Miss Mary Jane Edmundson will serve as Girls Cheerleading coach.

Other temporary assignments for staff members include Miss Jane Schoenberger, head of business education who will attend the 27th Annual Education Conference on Friday, Oct. 11.

Clifford Stroud, head of the vocational-agriculture department, as a member of the Commission on Secondary Schools, adjustments bringing fluid milk supply more in line with demand.

The measure, if approved by Congress, would permanently extend present authority for establishment of Class I base plans under federal milk market orders.

Such authority is contained in the Agricultural Extension bill now awaiting the President's signature, but this act, if approved, would only extend present programs for one year through December, 1970.

The rest of the dairy bill is similar to an amendment included in the House version of the AG bill, but knocked out when the measure went to a House-Senate conference.

Other provisions include: — Authorization for automatic updating of base periods in the calculation of a producer's milk delivery history.

— Removal of present restrictions in regard to new producers' earning bases.

— Clarification of the right of new producers to obtain bases in a manner equitable with old producers, particularly in rapidly expanding market areas.

— Authorization for the so-called "Louisville Plan," now in use in some 20 federal milk markets, which encourages the leveling of spring and fall production of milk.

Joseph DeThomas is the son of Arthur DeThomas and the late Mrs. Theresa DeThomas.

Keith Jones is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jones.

Patricia Ursell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pursell, R.D. 1, Mt. Bethel.

They are among 39,000 students in the United States who scored in the upper 2 per cent of those who will graduate from high school in 1969. The Commended students rank just below the 15,000 Semifinalists announced in September by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Sunday sales would aid area

Recent refusal by Playboy Clubs International to locate a $20 million resort complex in the Poconos, serves as an indication of modern thinking on liquor licenses.

Sunday sales of alcoholic beverages is expected to become a reality in the near future, but as of this moment the lack of such sales is hurting the tourist industry in Pennsylvania.

As an example, Playboy Clubs International has announced plans for its resort complex and construction will be in neighboring Sussex County, New Jersey, a state that has long permitted the sale of alcoholic beverages on Sunday.

Pennsylvania permits liquor sales on Sunday in private clubs, but has fought off a desire for such sales in public taverns and bars, as well as in hotels.

Church groups have spearheaded the anti-liquor drive on Sunday, pointing out that this day was the only day set aside in a week for worship services.

However, over the years the trend of thought has changed, especially in resort areas. It is now thought that people over 21, the legal drinking age in this state, are intelligent enough to govern their drinking habits and to regulate them so as not to interfere with good family life.

The sale of alcoholic beverages on Sunday need not be a detriment to society. In fact, it would greatly increase the financial income for resorts such as those located throughout the Poconos.

We, in fact, favor the Sunday sale of alcoholic beverages, feeling that it will greatly boost the Poconos as a resort area. We also feel that an intelligent approach toward the issue will make the Sunday sale of liquor no more of a social problem than similar sales from Monday through Saturday.

Pledge wrong

It has long been reported that all is fair in love and war and campaigning for the presidency of the United States is no doubt a form of warfare.

However, we feel that Hubert Humphrey was more than a little unfair to pledge an ending to the bombing of North Vietnam as part of a campaign speech.

By this pledge we feel he put the presidency above all else. The situation at the time of his election, if he is elected, may not warrant an end to the bombing.

As the fighting develops in future weeks an increase in bombing may be in order, rather than a total end to the aerial attacks.

The safety of our troops in Vietnam and the success or failure of our efforts to halt Communism in Asia may hinge on the strength of our bombing missions against the enemy in Vietnam.

No political candidate at this time can honestly pledge an end to the bombing, even on a temporary basis, as the entire pattern and velocity of the way may change between now and January, when the new president will take office.

A pledge of this type to our way of thinking shows a bit of carelessness and disregard for the entire war effort. It shows a disregard for our troops and our cause.

Humphrey may want to end the bombing as bad or worse than anyone else in the United States. But, he can't make a flat pledge. He could have said he will end the bombing if at all possible. But, he made a flat statement that the bombing would be ended. This is wrong.

No candidate can make any promises for Vietnam, as the trend of the fighting may change over night.

Statements made by political candidates must be taken lightly and weighed carefully.

With Gene Brown

Towards dusk the other evening, as Mrs. B. and I were walking briskly along Chambers Rd. we were overtaken by one Jimmy Foley, age 12, pushing his brand new yellow bike up the steep grade. It had three gears with a stick shift, racing tires and an oversize headlight.

I complimented him on this truly magnificent bike and he replied that he got it selling Christmas cards. Asking him how long it took to earn the money he said that he worked from early morning till dark for 32 days.

Mrs. B. wondered to him why he was out selling cards now that he had his bike. He answered "I am working on a bike for my sister." It seems that a few months ago he took his sister's bike and collided with a car which ruined the wheel and earned him 32 stitches.

Now he had another month's work ahead of him but he said he would make it.

As we reached the top of the grade he mounted the bike for the down-hill. I asked him hopefully if he had any spare time in which he could take an executive position at the News-Time.

He said he was too busy for as soon as he got a bike for his sister he wanted to sell more cards which would entitle him to a speedometer.

"I want to say something!" cried a loud voice.
"You keep out of this," snapped the minister. "You're the groom!"

U.S. may apply brakes

WASHINGTON — The Federal Trade Commission and the Justice Department are eyeing an $85 million-a-year oil company outlay on those lottery-like games which have replaced high octane as the pulling power for your neighborhood gas station.

The FTC, government watchdog on advertising, has promised a crackdown. For the present, however, the marketing battle between sweepstakes, matching coupons and other merchandising games-of-chance goes on without regulation or restraint.

The question for federal authorities is whether this sort of competition by near-gambling is automatically licensed in a free enterprise economy, as a legitimate competitive practice. Interests of gas station operators are involved along with those of the consumer.

There is evidence that some of the widely advertised games have lent themselves to cheating and fraud in some instances. Beyond that, however, is the question of whether the station operator and the consumer profit from the something-for-nothing promotions.

The cash and the sports cars do not really come for nothing, of course. According to data assembled by a House subcommittee, 11 major oil companies spent $18 million in about a year on game materials, $23 million for the prizes and a whopping $44 million to advertise the games on television and radio and in other media.

While many drive-in participants do not realize it, filling station operators pay a part of the cost. By purchasing game coupons at 1¢ or 2 cents each they anted up $32 million, according to the congressional survey, and their customers took home prizes worth about $24 million at retail prices.

One group of companies has certainly benefitted from the promotions. Firms which specialize in devising and administering marketing games collected $18 million in fees, according to the survey.

Supermarkets too

Federal action, when and if it comes, could well be a precedent for the use of similar promotions by supermarkets and other retailers. While the Trade Commission has been studying all such games, however, the heat is on the gas station odds makers.

That is because a House Small Business subcommittee referred information on gas station games to the commission and the Justice Department after hearings earlier this year. The commission has now assured the chairman, Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., that it plans to act.

Some legal experts are now contending, however, that such games become lotteries when participants are required to go to a purchasing point—a gas station—to become players. That argument has been sustained by a New Jersey court.

John A. Goldsmith

A couple of states, Maryland and Massachusetts, have already acted to outlaw such games inside their borders, but the state laws are apparently headed for court tests. Current court precedents indicate that such games are not illegal lotteries if participants are not required to make a purchase, and the gas station promotions do not require that.

From the consumer point of view, of course, the game should be honest, and participation free, as advertised. From the station operator's standpoint, participation should be voluntary. All those points were put in question at the subcommittee hearings.

The testimony suggested that some of the games have occasionally been subject to manipulation by unscrupulous station operators or their suppliers. For example, an Easton station operator testified he was given a winning coupon (for more than $500) by a jobber and told to give it to a good customer to popularize the Humble Oil and Refining Co. game, "Tigerama."

The subcommittee was also told that dealers, with a bit of practice, could pick winning coupons for the American Oil Co. game, "Whiner's Circle," from small variations in printing and ink. The Shell Oil Game, "Americadia," employed envelopes which carried telltale markings, according to the testimony.

Oil companies have acted to prevent fraud, however. Coupons for the Humble game "Winning Ticket" are now printed by an Atlanta company, in tight security under the watchful eye of an accounting firm. They are shuffled by a blower and loosely packed to avoid any prediction of regular sequences in a package of coupons.

Dealers complain that participation in the games is not always voluntary. The subcommittee was told that a Macon, Ga., operator was told to participate in Sinclair's "Double Dino Dollars" or vacate the station which he leased. Similar pressures were reported elsewhere.

Oil company executives stated that the games are free to the consumer. Other testimony indicated, however, that games cost station operators from three-tenths of a cent per gallon of gasoline to as much as three quarters of a cent, and some participating dealers said they raised their prices on gasoline or oil to cover those added costs.

Subcommittee members asked whether a multi-million dollar radio-television campaign advertising big prizes to be awarded by an oil company is not, itself, a kind of pressure on that company's station operators to invest money in the company's newest marketing game.

Dingell says he does not really care whether Humble's final decision is for the Tiger of the Ad Manager. He suggests, however, that: "Both of them look pretty silly wearing their gambler's eye-shades."

Stretch drive campaign

Crack production organization to glamorize Humphrey

By DONALD R. LARRABEE

Record Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Joseph Napolitan of Springfield, Mass., is a man in search of around eight million dollars. With it, he thinks it's possible in five weeks for Vice President Hubert Humphrey to win his uphill battle against Richard Nixon.

Napolitan is the Democratic National Committee's newly-installed director of advertising whose political campaign techniques, with strong emphasis on television, have helped pull off some amazing victories for congressional candidates in recent years.

Brought in by Democratic Chairman Lawrence O'Brien, also of Springfield, only three weeks ago, Napolitan has assembled a crack production team to glamorize Humphrey on special films for television showing in the closing weeks of the campaign.

"We have four different film and radio production units working," said Napolitan, "with what I consider to be the most effective team any candidate ever had. The question is whether we are going to show the films to the staff or to the voters. It will cost between seven and eight million dollars to buy the television time and we'll be lucky if we get half of that."

He is impressed with what Richard Nixon's campaign staff has done with television ("They admit to spending eight million dollars and is convinced that this is the only way Humphrey's record can be brought to the voters effectively in the short time remaining).

Must reach masses

"It's not just massive television; it's what you say. We've got to communicate to the masses of the voters and we have to use the mass communications media. We can't do it in day-to-day appearances around the country."

Napolitan's plea has reached sympathetic ears, primarily because of his credentials. He claims "six straight wins" this year as a consultant and a lifetime record of managing 15 successful campaigns out of 17 he has taken on. He has done assignments for the Kennedys and Lyndon Johnson—and only works for Democrats.

Timely television appeals, masterminded by Napolitan, probably helped John J. Gilligan upset

Harris survey

Nixon leading on third lap of presidential campaign

By LOUIS HARRIS

All modern presidential campaigns divide into four parts: (1) the pre-convention battle for the nomination, (2) the climactic convention, (3) the post-convention backwash period and (4) the final stretch run following completion of the World Series.

In the pre-convention period, Richard Nixon was the winner, as Barry Goldwater was before him, of the battle within his party but was the loser of the popularity polls. Nelson Rockefeller placed a pall over Nixon during this period and the former vice president simply could not break out as a popular winner.

Hubert Humphrey lay back in the pre-convention period and in a sense let the nomination come to him from attrition. He had the muscle, was doing respectably well in the popularity polls, and in Eugene McCarthy had an opponent simply unacceptable to the party professionals.

In the period following the conventions, Nixon has begun to come into his own. He has spurred into the lead in the polls, is attracting good and orderly crowds and seems to have his carefully planned campaign rolling. By contrast, Humphrey has now slipped behind in the polls, is plagued by disorder wherever he appears and somehow initially has not been able to get his campaign untracked.

Up to now, in terms of the ultimate outcome of the election, the convention period has proved to be more decisive than is usually the case in determining the ultimate winner. The public responded in quite different fashion to the two conventions.

Here is the public's reaction to the GOP convention, as measured in a series of questions put to a cross section of 1,324 voters in mid-September:

REACTION TO REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

	Agree Per Cent	Disagree Per Cent	Not Sure Per Cent
Nixon's acceptance speech was one of the best in a long time.	49	14	37
The Republican convention was boring.	40	37	23
The GOP falsely tried to sweep their real differences under the rug.	32	32	36
GOP politicians used polls too much to influence delegates.	22	33	45
Miami race riots during GOP convention pointed up how little GOP has done for Negroes.	20	53	27
Southern segregationists controlled the Republican convention.	12	50	38

Fundamentally, the Republican convention may have been boring to many voters, but above all it avoided controversy. The potential dangers of the so-called "Nixon deal" with Sen. Strom Thurmond to obtain Southern support appear not to have taken deep hold at all. The race riots in Miami during the GOP convention were not related by voters to the political business being transacted in nearby

Don MacLean

Rioters follow newsmen

WASHINGTON — Regular readers of this space no doubt are aware of my contention that the news media does not rush about the world chasing riots but, rather, it is the rioters and professional protesters who follow the newsmen.

This has been demonstrated once again in Mexico City. Sure, some people say the students are shooting at soldiers because, in the recent past, Mexico authorities have used "unnecessary" force. Perhaps. But, if you ask me, the main reason the students have been whipped into a frenzy is because the press happens to be in town for the Olympics.

Things were a trifle slow on the eve of the Olympics' start and Mexico's professional agitators knew that bored newspaper and television reporters would be delighted with some action. It was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for the protesters to air their complaints — real or imagined — to the world.

The same thing happened at the Democrats'

Miami Beach.

The single outstanding impression of the Republican convention was Nixon's acceptance speech, which impressed one voter in every two as "one of the best in a long time." This performance was the keynote of his campaign, has become the basis of his television and radio thrust and parallels a comparable impression he made in 1960. After that speech he moved into a 53-47 per cent lead over John F. Kennedy. It took the great debates to reverse this margin back then.

The public impression of the Democratic convention was vastly different from the GOP conclave:

REACTION TO DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

	Agree Per Cent	Disagree Per Cent	Not Sure Per Cent
Were right to seat Southern Negro delegates.	73	9	18
Mayor Daley was right the way he used police against the demonstrators.	66	20	14
Democrats wouldn't let delegations who disagreed have say on the floor.	46	22	32
Way they ran convention, Democrats proved they couldn't govern America.	34	49	17
Humphrey made one of the best acceptance speeches.	32	28	40
Anti-Vietnam demonstrators had protest rights taken away unlawfully.	14	66	20

Clearly, at the Democratic convention, the events dominated the candidate, Hubert Humphrey. The public sided with Mayor Daley and not with the demonstrators. The credit the Democrats won for seating the Mississippi and Georgia delegations with Negroes in them was dissipated by the disorder, thought by 34 per cent to prove they therefore "couldn't govern America."

Above all, Vice President Humphrey was not the focal point of the convention. Events seemed to buffet him. In sharp contrast, the Republican convention elevated Richard Nixon and submerged GOP problems.

In the backwash period since the conventions, Nixon has continued to hold onto his lead and has proved capable of weaving events and issues to suit his campaign strategy. Humphrey still is beset by his convention trouble of being discomfited by events beyond his control—Vietnam, disorder and differences over President Johnson.

But there are still four weeks to go, and in this strangest year of politics the past is not a solid guide to the future. The fourth act in the drama is yet to come and the full public reaction to what "President Nixon" would be like is just settling in, and in 1968, both the public and events have consistently been cruel to front-runners.

convention in Chicago. The world press was in town and more or less bored since Hubert Humphrey was a lead-pipe cinch for the nomination. You don't think there would have been a Yippies' revolt in Chicago if the convention and the reporters had been in, say, Los Angeles, do you?

(There might have been more trouble at the GOP convention, because all the elements were there, except that Miami Beach was too difficult to reach. Even so, there was some trouble; however, the television crews had logistical problems moving around Miami and the disturbances, consequently, really never got off the ground.)

And then we had the great Paris riots of spring. The average French student is always ready to take to the barricades for something, but he chose for his greatest moment of truth a time when the press was there to cover the opening of the peace talks. Here, too, the press was bored and available because nothing was happening at the peace table.

"The whole business of politics is changing," he continued. "Techniques are different. The last comparable election was 1960 and political television has come a long way since then. It's hard to imagine but 30 years ago, we lined people against a wall—like a firing squad—and shot their pictures."

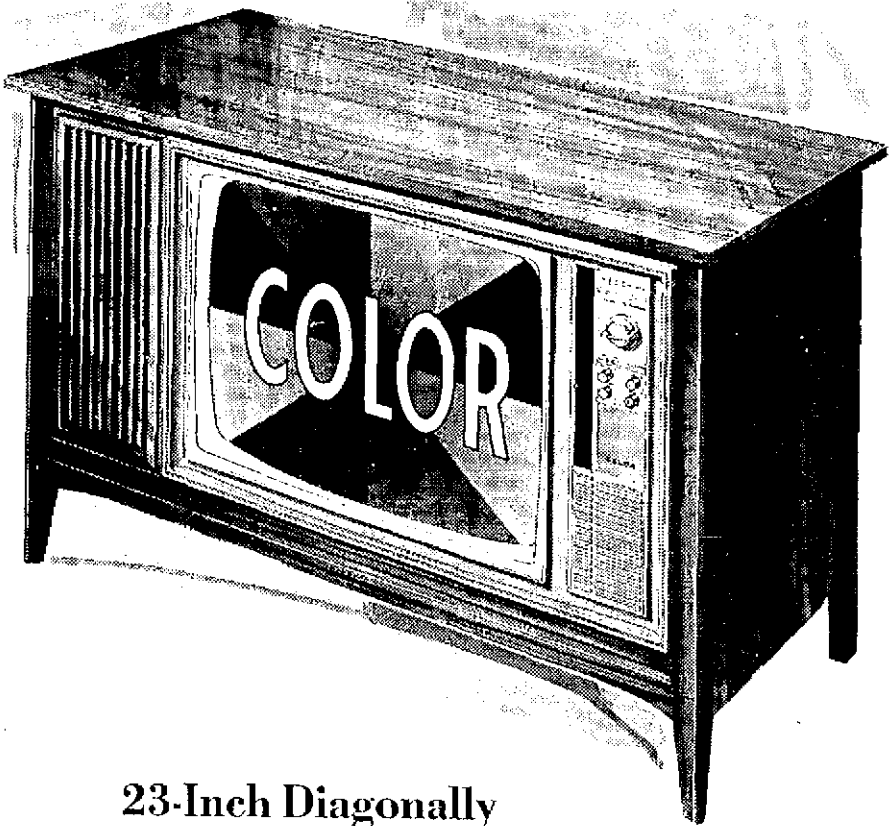

Still in his early forties, Napolitan talks about "retiring from the political business" when the campaign is over. He wants more time with his wife and family. Instead of the daily campaign grind, he has plans for a book on political campaign techniques developed over the past 12 years. And he may look for new fields to conquer abroad. Napolitan is organizing an international conference of professional campaign managers.

Dinner, reception honor Dean Jones on retirement after 38 years at ESSC

EAST STROUDSBURG — "Usually I can smell a mouse, but this time I didn't," Dean Jones, retired Dean of Women of East Stroudsburg State College, said in regard to the surprise reception in her honor

Monday night. The Dean, who retired after 38 years, had been invited to a dinner at the apartment of the new Dean of Women, Miss Mildred Wealty, in Hawthorn Hall, Monday night.

Accompanying Miss Jones was her friend, Miss Josephine Kerns.

The dinner was attended by the social deans of the four women's dormitories and the housemothers from each dormitory. After dinner, Miss Jones was asked to enter the lounge of the dormitory where, "There were so many of the women students and the Women's Executive Council, all dressed so nicely," the retiring dean said. "I had no warning about the reception."

In the receiving line, Miss Jane Link, vice president of the Women's Executive Council, and Miss Barbara Brown, secretary of the council, stood with Miss Jones and introduced the students who gathered to offer best wishes. "Many of the girls asked if I would be sure to come to their graduation. Others said, 'See, I'm still here,' because they had been on probation and I knew of it," the dean explained.

Miss Vivian Robinson, president of the council, acted as mistress of ceremonies and presented a sugar maple tree and a Cullen Yates painting to Miss Jones. During the presentation remarks, Miss Robinson cited Miss Jones for her contributions to the growth of the women's facilities at the college and her outstanding contributions to campus life.

The tree, which was presented in the form of a tiny replica, with the actual tree to be delivered later, prompted Miss Jones to comment, "It has no fall colors on it this year but next year it will be quite pretty and I hope you will all come to see it and help me enjoy it."

The painting, which hung for a number of years in the quiet lounge of the now demolished Stroud Hall, had been admired by Dean Jones for some time. "I always felt that the mountain scene might have been painted by Mr. Yates in his studio in Shawnee," Dean Jones noted. She had known the painter and remembers him as a gentle, quiet man. Her appreciation of the painting was expressed in her story of its movements from the quiet lounge.

"I asked that it be cared for when Stroud was to be demolished," the gray-haired dean said. "When my office was in Minsi, I had it hung on the wall there, it remained when I vacated the office. What a surprise to receive it as a gift."

Miss Robinson's citation of Miss Jones' contribution to the college touched on developments on campus. Miss

Miss Betty Moore, a junior at East Stroudsburg State College, moves through the reception line and shakes hands with Dean Jones, offering best wishes. The dean retired after 38 years at ESSC.

Jones discussed the rose garden which was moved from the triangle near old Stroud Hall on its demolition.

"The bushes were transferred to Hawthorn last fall and we added six more," Dean Jones explained. The history of the rose garden, known on campus as "Dean Jones' Rose Garden" dates from 1941 when, on the death of her father, bushes were planted in the triangle. Through efforts of the former business manager and the Women's Executive Council what had once been a cinder driveway came to be a colorful blooming corner of the campus, and although the site of the garden has changed, the unofficial name has not.

Dr. Leroy Koehler, former president of ESSC, once remarked to Dean Jones, "Once people start with you they always stay on the staff." This truism was displayed by those who gathered at the dinner. All those attending had worked with Dean Jones for 15 years or more. Miss Kerns had taught for 30 years prior to her retirement.

In 1930, Dean Jones joined the English department of the college and became a full dean four years later. In 1953, Dean Wheatly, who is now Dean of Women, joined the staff, as her assistant.

Dean Jones offered a philosophy she developed during the 30 years she lived in Stroud Hall and was dean. "You see a great change from the freshman year to the sophomore year, if the students have a problem, you help them to grow. I liked the informal contact with students. Sunday evenings we would have an informal sing in the reception lounge in Stroud. That way we got to know that we were all basically human."

An anecdote was remembered, "Once, when I was living in old Shawnee Hall (which stood where Kemp Library is today) I had an apartment on the third floor. There were 80 freshmen girls on the third and fourth floors. One morning I answered the door dressed in a lounge robe or Hoover apron. The girl at the door looked at me and said, 'Dean Jones. You look just like anybody else!' 'The dean laughed at the memory. "It was the recognition of basic humanity," she explained. "And when I left Stroud eight years ago, I lost that touch with the students. They seem to be afraid of the title," she sighed.

Memories of her years at the college evoke faces and incidents, some sad, some personal but most of all rewarding. "This summer there were several visits from former students. One couple drove miles out of their way to visit me. At Christmas time I receive pictures of former students' children announcements of marriages and births are also sent. More recently I have received death notices, they are unhappy," she said sadly.

"But the visits and letters and cards mean that I did establish rapport and it was wonderful to work with young people; that meant more than my salary," she concluded.

Attending Dean Wheatly's dinner party were Miss Ardath Houser and Mrs. Virginia T. Simmons, both from Laurel Hall; Mrs. Ann Griffiths, housemother of Hawthorne for which Miss Wheatly is social dean; Mrs. Mary Cottle, housemother, and Miss Adelaide Wolfe, dean, both of Linden Hall; Mrs. Sara W. Here, dean and Mrs. Ethel Dennis, housemother, of Minsi; Miss Kerns, and Mrs. Henry Reader, Miss Jones' secretary, and Miss Myra Ahles, who worked at ESSC prior to her retirement.

The staff presented Miss Jones with an orchid corsage for the festivities, and to add to her interest in gardening, a fountain was given for her use on lawn, garden or terrace.

During the reception, Sharon Murphy and Karen Roberts played piano selections.

Ann Landers

Answered too quickly.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 43, my husband is 47. Cal is puritanical and straitlaced in many ways but surprisingly unconventional in others.

Recently he asked me to fix breakfast for him wearing only the black lace baby-doll nightie he brought from Atlantic City as a gag. I have kept the nightie hidden because it looks like something a call girl would wear and I didn't want the landlady or the children to see it.

I really hated to wear that sexy nightie in the kitchen but agreed to do it to please Cal. To my horror, our 18-year-old daughter caught me. She was shocked and I was mortified. I tried to act nonchalant. When she asked my why I was wearing that ridiculous thing, I replied, "A woman never knows what her husband will ask her to do next. This was your Dad's idea."

Cal walked into the kitchen at that very moment and he heard me. He was obviously furious but said nothing. He left the house without breakfast and telephoned me an hour later to say I had done him a grave disservice. His last words were "From now on I'm through with sex unless you instigate it."

Was I wrong to tell my daughter the truth? What should I do about Cal's last words?

BLACK LACE TROUBLE

Dear B.L.T.: Your husband's irritation at having been sold down the river is understandable. Better to have made a joke of the incident.

Now you must take your punishment like a good sport and be "the instigator" until he gets over his anger.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 16-year-old daughter has a boyfriend (age 17) who is an amateur photographer. The other evening he took pictures of a family group at a reunion in our home. I have heard photographers ask people to say "cheese" and "peaches" to relax their faces and give a smiley look to their lips, but this young man requested that we all say "sex." I felt it was in poor taste and said so.

My daughter called me a prude and said I am living in the olden days. What do you say?

Pocono set to adopt income tax

TANNERSVILLE — Pocono Township Supervisors Tuesday night agreed to adopt a one per cent earned income tax.

The ordinance will be advertised and voted on at the November meeting.

A spokesman for the supervisors said the reason for adopting the tax is to purchase some used equipment for the township, prevent the millage on real estate from increasing, and because the county commissioners have said they are cutting all allotments to township.

In other business, the supervisors voted to advertise for a new truck.

French prof wins doctor's

EAST STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Biruta Cap, an associate professor of French at East Stroudsburg State College, received her Doctor of Philosophy degree from Rutgers University in French Tuesday.

Mrs. Cap's dissertation is titled "Moliere's Craft as Seen through his Patterns and Techniques." In addition to her Ph.D. she also received her M.A. degree in French from Rutgers University.

Prior to joining the staff of ESSC, Mrs. Cap was an assistant professor at Dunbarton College.

OUT OF THE PICTURE MOTHER?

Dear Mother: I say your daughter's boyfriend sounds like a smart-mouth kid. If a photographer in your age group had made the suggestion I would see nothing to criticize — in fact, it might have produced some pleasant smiles. From a 17-year-old boy, however, such instructions to adults are in poor taste.

Dear Ann Landers: We are expecting our first child in about seven months. I am 34, my husband is 38. I am apprehensive because of my age and I want to go to a top O.B. specialist in this city.

My husband wants me to go to his uncle who is a general practitioner because it won't cost us anything. Am I being childish as he says?

UPSET

Dear Up: A relaxed relationship between a woman and her O.B. is more important than the money you might save. Tell your husband you'll cut down on something else and insist on going to the doctor of your choice.

When romantic glances turn to warm embraces is it love or chemistry? Send for the booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference," by Ann Landers. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents in coin with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Voice of Broadway

While some oldtime stars are telling all their perverted past in sex-books, Sylvia Sidney has turned out "Sylvia Sidney's Needlepoint Book" . . . Nancy Parker of The Bronx asks us why Ann Blyth doesn't make the gossip columns: because she's a fine lady who raises kids, not eyebrows.

Chris Dedrick, who sings with the Free Design group on Project Three Records, may be the next Jimmy Webb: a trumpet major at Manhattan School of Music, he plays six instruments, writes his group's material, arranges for other groups and gets a haircut every three weeks; the latter could cool it all, these days.

Leave it to the old Bookish Barnum Bennett Cerf of Random House and Pun City to think this one up: now you can buy a "Random House Sweat Shirt of the English Language," 18 words from his dictionary at $4 and any of the other 260,000 words from his dictionary custom-copied onto the perspiration sooper for $19.95.

Upper Broadway spot is called Needlepoint Square (junk pushed openly) . . . Margaret Whiting was at Ponte's Steak House with Paul Anka's father . . . At "George M!" star Peggy Wood reminisced that she appeared in Cohan's 1914 "Hello, Broadway" . . . Jerome Weidman's "Love Play" coming to Broadway is described as a "comedy of terrors." Letter from the "Tonight" show to insiders announced it's seeking "offbeat eccentric types" as guests . . . Lotte Lenya's role in "The Appointment" is a peddler of antiques and young girls . . . The "Stranger" Westerns are made in Italy (the first two at $125,000 each); the next will be filmed in Japan (saki tumi, baby) . . . Sears-Roebuck cut violence out of its annual catalogue: no guns or war toys.

Woody Allen has deeper Brooklyn roots than we imagined: his dad was Brooklyn Dodgers mascot in 1913 . . . David Janssen will attend his "Shoes of the Fisherman" New York premiere with his till-now estranged wife . . . We did a take when we read RCA's list of October albums—it includes "Younger Than Springtime," by Mario Lanza.

Jonathan Harris of the television set is an especially entertaining character comic; the late Clifton Webb once advised the "Lost in Space" videactor, "You are my natural heir—but stay thin." . . . He did and gets the fat parts . . . Maureen Stapleton will find her understudy Judith Barcroft (in "Plaza Suite") rates better tables at the Pen & Pencil; reason's simple—owner John Bruno Jr. is her steady.

Christine Jorgensen's selling her Long Island home and will move to the Virgin Islands; there's a joke in there we wouldn't touch with a ten-foot typewriter . . . Las Vegas, where the worst snuffler is countenanced in floor shows—but not at dinnertime, when scads of kids are present . . . Ace jazz clarinetist Buddy DeFranco and Frau hit a clinker . . . Coco Chanel's memoirs, due this December, say her secret of happiness is never to live alone; Coco never married, which isn't the same thing in her sizzling book . . . No war toys for Sears' catalogue, but there is a mink bathrobe for $4,500.

New York cabdriver found a little black book which contained the card of a Chicago bank chairman, who happens also to be a New York resident. The cabbie mailed the book to the banker (a bachelor), who discovered a remarkable assortment of names of New York political bigshots, private phones with code-methods of letting the phone ring a certain number of times, hang up and call back; etc. The book belonged to a young lady no better than she had to be; last initial: "T."

Jonathan Javits, Republican Sen. Jake's son, was a demonstrator at the Chicago Democratic convention. "Spiro Agnew" sounds like the first two words of a Papal Encyclical. With television debates highly improbable, the first and perhaps only official confrontation of Hubert Humphrey and Richard Nixon will happen Oct. 16 at Archbishop Terence Cooke's banquet at the Waldorf for the Alfred E. Smith Foundation . . . Known in New York politics as "The Al Smith Dinner," it always makes news; in 1960 John F. Kennedy and Richard Nixon were the stars of the bill.

Youthful agitators harden opposition to lowering voting age

CHICAGO (AP) — Only two states permit 18-year-olds to vote, and despite presidential support most states are balking at lowering the voting age or are ignoring the matter, an Associated Press survey shows.

Many proponents of the lower voting age contend Americans are mature at 18 today because of better diets and health care.

Many opponents point to rioting on college campuses and youthful demonstrations such as those during the Democratic National Convention in Chicago as proof that 18-year-olds are not mature enough to vote.

Georgia and Kentucky have allowed 18-year-olds to vote and both have done so for many years. Alaska has had a voting age of 19 since it became a state.

In five other states, measures lowering the voting age from 21 are under consideration.

Citizens of Nebraska and Hawaii will vote Nov. 5 on constitutional amendments setting lower voting ages—to 19 in Nebraska and 18 in Hawaii.

The Nov. 5 ballot will ask Tennessee voters whether they wish to empower the state's next constitutional convention to draft an amendment lowering the voting age to 18. If approved in November and later by the

Submarine runs over car

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Paul Camplin, a retired Navy man now working for the state, recalls the time a submarine ran over an auto.

It happened at New London, Conn., when Camplin's sub overshot the landing and rammed into the seawall at the head of the pier.

convention, it will be put to the voters in a referendum.

Five bills introduced in the Pennsylvania legislature are languishing in committee. Three propose 18 years and one 20 years. Another would retain the 21-year level, except for servicemen with at least seven months' active duty, who would be permitted to vote at 18.

In Massachusetts the legislature barely passed a resolution setting the voting age at 19. However, this must be passed again after elections in October, then go on the 1970 ballot.

Anxiety over youthful agitation appears to have contributed to the downfall of lower voting age measures in at least four states.

A proposed constitutional amendment put through the 1967 North Dakota legislature was turned down recently by voters, 61,813 to 59,034. Disruptions during the Democratic National Convention were thought to have scared away many voters.

A proposed state constitution presented to the Florida Legislature recently by the Florida Constitution Revision Commission had a section reducing the voting age to 18.

However, legislators, aroused by college riots and a "free speech" movement at Florida State University in Tallahassee, changed the age provision back to 21.

In Arizona, a proposed state constitutional amendment to lower the voting age to 18 was killed in a Senate committee after a hearing in which opponents cited college disturbances.

In New Jersey, student demonstrations are believed to have curbed what seemed, at best, only moderate support for a constitutional amendment lowering the voting age.

The bidding:

Pass 1 ♠ Pass 4 NT
Pass 5 ♠ Pass 5 ♠

Opening lead—ace of diamonds.

After 21 boards had been played in the 80-board final of the Third World Bridge Olympiad, the Italians were leading the American team by 28 international match points, but by the time Deal No. 22 was over, Italy was ahead by 39.

When Forquet and Gorozzo held the North-South cards, the bidding went as shown. Forquet's four notrump response was Blackwood, and he obviously intended to undertake a slam if it turned out that Gorozzo had three aces.

But Gorozzo turned up with only two aces, and the bidding died abruptly at five spades, which was easily made for a score of 450 points.

The auction was considerably more active at the second table, where Robinson and Jordan held the North-South cards for the United States against Belladonna and Avarelli.

Here, when Jordan opened the bidding with a spade, Avarelli (West) doubled for takeout. This double, with a singleton heart and an unfavorable vulnerability besides was in keeping with the seemingly dangerous principle followed by the Roman pair that a singleton in an unbid suit is not a bar to a takeout double when there are the high-card values present for an opening bid. The bidding proceeded:

East South West North
Pass 1 ♠ Pass 3 ♠
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠
3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠
4 ♠ Pass 5 ♠
5 ♠ Pass 5 ♠
Pass Pass Dble

Jordan and Robinson judged the hand exceptionally well to continue on the six spades (down one), since Belladonna would have wrapped up six clubs without a struggle, but, even so, they suffered a tear loss of 550 points.

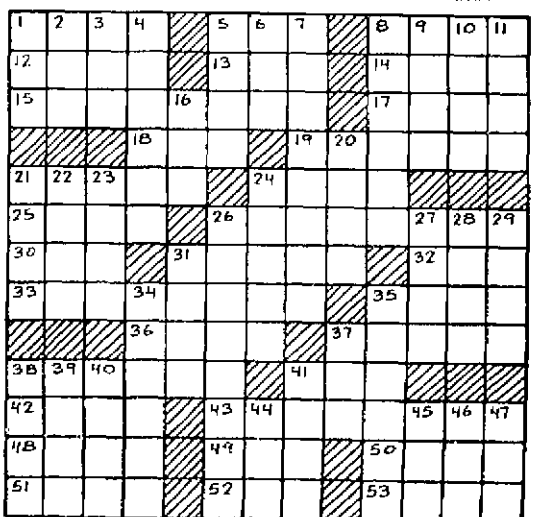

Their teammates at the other table had never entered the bidding even though they could have made a slam in either of two suits!

Planning commission reviews Tocks area zoning standards

STROUDSBURG — A comprehensive report on proposed zoning standards for the township Tocks Island Planning District have been completed and are currently under review by the Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission.

The zoning standards are the final phase of a lengthy planning report by the Raymond and May Associates planning consultants for the planning commission.

The entire package of several reports is designed to provide guidelines for future growth within Smithfield, Middle Smithfield and Price Townships.

The plan proposes three categories for residential development. These are:

— High density residential areas where early construction of apartments, row houses and smaller lot single family homes would be permitted.

— Medium density residential areas for single-family and two-family homes for later development of more intense housing types.

— Low density residential areas intended primarily for single-family homes and seasonal developments at low residential densities.

The report indicates that higher density residential developments are located adjacent to the Stroudsburg area and at the crossroads of regional highways in the Pond Creek Valley.

All low density residential areas are located northwest of the proposed Route 209 relocation.

Planned developments including residences, commerce, industry and community facilities are recommended in an area along Route 209 and the Pond Creek Valley between the Stroudsburgs and proposed Bushkill Park entrance to the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area.

Other zoning categories recommended and outlined for the tri-township area are a rural recreation district; commercial recreation district; local commercial district; retail service center district; highway commercial district; industrial district; industrial park district and a generalized use district.

Wallace backer refuses to quit Democratic post

BRODHEADSVILLE — Donald Hunsicker, an outspoken backer of George C. Wallace, said Wednesday that he has refused a demand that he resign his position on the executive committee of the Monroe County Democratic Party.

Hunsicker said the demand that he resign was made after he publicly endorsed the former Alabama governor (or president).

He also revealed that Wallace will make a swing through northeastern Pennsylvania within the next 16 days and may visit Monroe County, coming from Allentown in a helicopter.

Hunsicker emphasized that his support of Wallace is personal and independent from his position on the Democratic executive committee and president of the West End Democratic Club.

He said the demand for his resignation came from Mrs. Patricia Baechtold, vice chairman of the party. "I am not resigning," he said.

Clark Smith, the Democratic district chairman in the West End has also asked Hunsicker to give up his office in the club. "I am not committing myself about that at this time," he said.

After his public endorsement of Wallace, Hunsicker said he has received "300 phone calls."

The callers, he said, included "past and present officeholders in both parties. Also, some prominent clergymen."

He said only two callers disapproved of his stand.

The West End morlician said he received a call from Wallace headquarters in Montgomery, Ala. and that Wallace aides ought to emphasize that the southern segregationist's campaign is not "racist," not "against any religion," and is not "Nazi."

Wallace is famous for his fight against school desegregation in Alabama.

Hunsicker also said that a Wallace campaign headquarters will "definitely" be opened in Stroudsburg. The exact location of the headquarters is pending, he said.

HHH due in Scranton

STROUDSBURG — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is scheduled to bring his campaign for President of the United States to the Scranton area on Monday.

Stuart F. Pipher, Monroe County Democratic Chairman, said Wednesday that Humphrey is scheduled to land at the Avoca Airport at 4:30 p.m.

The Democratic presidential candidate is scheduled to speak at the airport, appear on television and deliver a major speech in Scranton before leaving from the airport at 10 p.m.

Pipher said that buses may join a motor caravan from Stroudsburg, although plans haven't been completed to date.

Putting-you-firsts:

(A quick tour of some of the thoughtful new features the 1969 Chevrolets offer that other cars in Chevrolet's field don't.)

Headlight washers

You push the windshield washer knob and hold it, and what happens? Your headlights come clean. Fluid is diverted to two jet nozzles at each light lens. (Outer lights only on duals.)

The spray is strong. It removes up to 80% of accumulated dirt. The feature is standard on 1969 Corvettes.

It comes with the hidden headlights available on Camaro, Caprice, and Kingswood Estate Wagons. It is available on all other models except Corvair. Be the first on your block.

Heated glass

In a moment your rear window will self-defrost. Because we've built onto it a network of tiny ceramic strips capable of heating the entire surface. Fog and frost disappear quickly and quietly.

You just flick a switch. The heated rear window is available on the 1969 Caprice Coupe and Impala Custom Coupe.

Pushbutton tire chains

This is ingenious, if we do say so ourselves.

You press a button on the instrument panel and the rear tires get a shot of "liquid tire chain."

You spin your wheels once, wait a moment, and you're off—with traction you wouldn't believe possible on slick ice, or packed snow.

A pressurized container sits up under each rear wheelhousing, and holds about 15 applications.

Which could get you through several winters in some parts of the country. (Several weeks in others.) Available on all 1969 big Chevrolets.

Steering wheel lock

When you own a car as desirable as the 1969 Chevrolet, you don't take chances. When you leave it, you lock it. Not just the doors.

You lock the ignition, steering wheel and transmission lever, too.

Our new lock on the steering column takes care of all that.

So even if somebody manages to break in and cross the wires, he'll have a hard time going anywhere.

Standard on all 1969 Chevrolets, Chevelles, Chevy Novas, Camaros and Corvettes.

Sorry, car thieves.

Power steering plus

The 1969 Caprice, Impala and Camaro are available with a new type of power steering. Variable-ratio power steering.

What it does is give you faster steering with fewer turns of the wheel.

And with no increase in effort on your part.

(And without giving up that nice firm feel on straightaways.)

Variable-ratio power steering is particularly helpful in short, full turns.

And parking becomes unbelievably easy. You'll see.

Walk-in wagons

The tailgate swings open like a door on most of our 1969 station wagons.

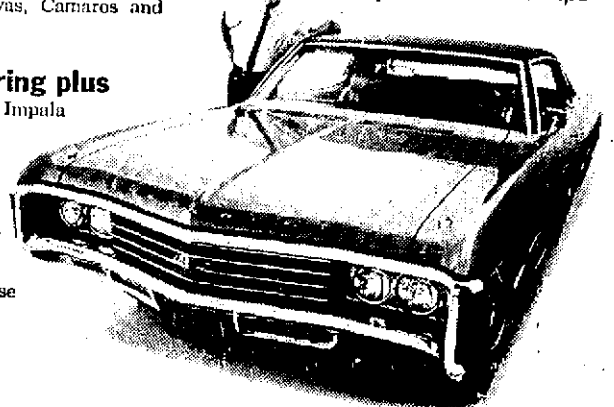

Which in itself is no big deal. But wait, there's more.

We've built a concealed step into the rear bumper.

You simply step up, over, and in. (The way we build our wagons, you can do it without bumping your head, and without acrobatics.)

Walk into a wagon soon at your Chevrolet dealer's.

Above is an accident on N. Fifth St. Wednesday, which claimed the life of a 73-year-old East Stroudsburg woman. The dead woman was riding in the station wagon, left, going north; car at right swerved to avoid the accident, and the car in background, partially, was apparently traveling south in the wrong lane.

Collision injures three others

Woman, 73, killed in crash

STROUDSBURG — A 73-year-old East Stroudsburg woman was dead on arrival Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. at General Hospital of Monroe County following a three-car crash on N. Fifth Street, Stroud Twp.

Dead is Mrs. Elsie Transue of 399 Monroe St., East Stroudsburg.

Monroe County Coroner John C.F. Foelker, said, following an autopsy, death was caused by a ruptured aorta.

Mrs. Transue was a passenger in a car driven by Mrs. Shirley Transue, 45, of Cherry Valley Rd., Delaware Water Gap.

Mrs. Transue and the driver of the second car, Mrs. Helen Fetherman, 65, of 2011 N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg, were taken to the hospital and admitted.

Mrs. Transue is being treated for a fracture of the left leg, fractured left knee, and chest injuries. Her condition is guarded.

Also injured and taken to the hospital was Clyde Transue, one-year-old. He was treated and released.

According to Stroud Twp. Police, the elderly Mrs. Transue was pinned in the car for more than 15 minutes.

Mrs. Fetherman was traveling south on N. Fifth Street and Mrs. Shirley Transue was traveling north and the two cars collided in the northbound lane.

The third car involved was driven by Jacquelyn Pihring, 23, of 719 Rosemont St., Stroudsburg. She was not injured in the crash. Police said Mrs. Pihring swung to her right in an attempt to avoid the accident but the force of the impact of the first two cars caused them to move to the right side of the highway and collide with the Pihring car.

It appears that the Fetherman car glided across the centerline and collided with the Transue car. However, police will not know until after they have talked with Mrs. Fetherman.

There were only a few skid marks on the highway, just south of the intersection of N. Fifth St. and Fremont Ave. The only visible skid marks were about 12 inches long.

Police estimate damage at $1,000 to the Fetherman car, $3,500 to the Transue vehicle, and $150 to the Pihring car.

Born in Norwich, N.Y., Mrs. Transue was a daughter of the late John and Jennie Clark.

She was a member of East Stroudsburg Methodist Church and had lived in East Stroudsburg the past 40 years.

Survivors include her husband, Clyde Transue, at home; three daughters, Mrs.

William Funk, Stroudsburg; Mrs. Howard Dittus, East Stroudsburg, and Mrs. Ray Seimon, North Bergen, N.J.; two step-sons, Paul Transue, Delaware Water Gap, and Kenneth Transue, Stroudsburg; 17 grandchildren and 27 great-grandchildren.

Services will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. in Lanterman Funeral Home with the Rev. Harold C. Eaton officiating.

Burial will be in Laurelwood Cemetery. Friends and relatives may call at the funeral home Friday after 7 p.m.

Stroudsburg sets hearing on amendment to zoning

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg Borough Council Wednesday night passed a motion to hold a public hearing to form an amendment to a Zoning Ordinance which create a limited commercial zone on the north side of Sarah Street, from N. Fifth to N. Ninth.

The zoning change was recommended to the council at September's meeting by the planning commission.

In other action taken by council, a request from William Setzer to change the traffic pattern on Second Street was denied. Setzer had asked council to look into the matter because of heavy traffic on the street.

Mayor Joseph Small and

Stroudsburg Police Chief John Tretheway studied the problem and Mayor Small reported to the council the change would not be feasible.

Council approved a request from Harold C. Edwards to construct 508 feet of sanitary sewer lines on Sunset Lane.

Stroud supervisors approve development

STROUDSBURG — Stroud Township Supervisors Wednesday night approved development plans submitted by Jay J. Albertson Jr. for two plots on Miller St. on the recommendation of the township planning commission.

Supervisors delayed action on accepting two roads in the Glenbrook residential section. George Hallett, chairman, said the reason was that the developer has not completed improvements of these roads as agreed by the supervisors before accepting the project.

Supervisors will advertise for bids for two new trucks and three tail-gate cinder spreaders.

Police chief H.W. Tebbis, in his police report for September said that a total of 98 complaints were received and investigated; nine accidents were investigated; 23 traffic violations recorded; two cases for Grand Jury recorded and one stolen vehicle recovered.

Teachers singled out

Shafer opposes public strike

SWIFTWATER — Governor Raymond P. Shafer Wednesday night said an administration bill will be introduced in the legislature "within the next few days" which will propose a new public employees' law.

Shafer made the announcement during a half hour informal press conference before addressing the second annual Governor's Banquet at Mount Airy Lodge.

Although he did not go into detail, the administration bill will apparently establish procedures by which public employees can negotiate grievances.

Still opposed to public officials striking, Shafer said, "I think we must have a public employees' law that will set up procedures and the machinery to permit citizens in public employ to air their grievances." "I am not in favor of permitting public employees the right to strike," he added, "It's not in the public interest to permit this."

Shafer also commented on a telegram he received from Robert Casey, Candidate for Auditor General. Casey, in his telegram, urged that Shafer relieve Warner Deputay as Secretary of revenue. Deputay is Casey's Republican opponent, and a Pike County Commissioner.

Casey charged that a gross conflict of interest exists with a secretary of revenue seeking the post of Auditor General.

"I think any intelligent person would look at that telegram as a political ploy," Shafer said.

Shafer said he had instructed the Attorney General to determine if any possible conflict of interest exists. A press aide said the Attorney General's report is now on the Governor's desk and reveals no such conflict of interest exists.

In answer to a question on the current threat of a teachers' strike in Pittsburgh, Governor Shafer said, "To me it's (a strike) an outdated implement in a modern society as far as public employees are concerned."

The Governor added that teachers are in a profession and, they should as such not become involved in a power struggle.

He was quick to add, however, that Pennsylvania's teachers are among the finest and the educational system is among the best. He said Pennsylvania's teachers have the finest retirement system, fringe benefits, and comparatively speaking, are receiving an increasing salary level.

The Governor added he had received a letter early Wednesday from the Education Congress commending Pennsylvania's education system.

Commenting on a bill in the legislature permitting Sunday sales of alcoholic beverages, the Governor said, "I have made no firm decision on this and will not before it (the bill) comes to my desk."

Relaxing in his suite before addressing the banquet, Shafer said, "Richard M. Nixon is a man who has profited from his victories and defeats and has grown tremendously from them both" during an informal discussion about the Republican Presidential hopeful.

Shafer said Nixon is "much more relaxed" and is waging a different type of campaign from that of 1960. The Governor, however, did not think that Nixon is a completely "new Nixon" and added he believed this new Nixon label "is primarily a news media gimmick."

Governor Shafer, who was an early supporter of New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller bid for Republican Presidential nomination, said Nixon "has done a magnificent job in uniting the Republican Party."

He added Nixon is uniting the party more than any man he has ever known.

Raft of obscene material worries Republican candidate

By GIL MURRAY
Record News Editor

STROUDSBURG — Obscenity, an elusive term to define, is of major concern to the Republican candidate for the state Superior Court.

Judge John Hannum of Chester County expressed a deep concern over the availability of obscene material during an interview in the Courthouse in Stroudsburg Wednesday.

Judge Hannum was appointed to the Superior Court by Gov. Raymond Shafer Jan. 1, 1968, and is now seeking a full term against the challenge of Democrat William Cicone.

The Republican also expressed the opinion that the justices of the United States Supreme Court are "out of touch with the times."

Hannum also became somewhat of a phrase-maker during the interview when he changed the dominant theme of the current presidential campaign, "law and order," to "law and justice."

The jurist said that even though he was at odds with the U. S. Supreme Court over the obscenity issue, he endorsed most of the landmark decisions covering the rights of minorities and defendants.

He specifically endorsed the high court's 1954 school desegregation order, the right for all defendants to be represented by counsel and the requirement that a suspect be advised of his constitutional rights before being questioned.

Hannum seemed incensed over the quantities of salacious material available on nearly every newsstand in the Philadelphia area.

While he was unable to supply a concrete definition of obscenity, Hannum was definite in his attitude that the material should be more difficult to obtain.

The candidate endorsed the stand on gun controls taken by the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Club. That stand calls for tougher penalties for felons convicted of crimes involving guns.

This is opposed to the Johnson Administration's attempt to pass a bill requiring the registration of firearms.

On the law and justice issue, Hannum said the present laws are adequate to handle the situation, but the enforcement has been lax.

He singled out the federal system and indicated that federal courts have not enforced laws as strictly as possible.

Hannum also endorsed the election of judges, especially trial judges. He denied that public opinion could sway the thinking of a jurist who is "forced to seek and retain his position through elections."

He did admit, however, that "public opinion has some effect as far as judges are concerned."

Before his appointment to the court, Hannum, a Navy veteran, was a senior partner in the Philadelphia law firm of Pepper, Hamilton and Scheetz.

He said he has gained an "enlightened point of view toward Black America," while serving as a member of the executive committee of the trustees of Lincoln University, Oxford, Pa., a predominately Negro school near Philadelphia.

Hannum, an ardent sportsman, is a frequent visitor to the Poconos, where he does his fishing.

Bureau stresses needs for more foster homes

STROUDSBURG — The Advisory Committee of the Children's Bureau of Monroe County at its recent meeting stressed the "continuing need for foster homes, especially for teenagers," with the present active number of cases totaling 239 children.

Melvin Sweeney, executive director of the Children's Bureau making the announcement said that these cases include children in foster homes, in institutions, receiving service in their own homes, receiving protective care and includes adoptions.

The committee has agreed to meet regularly each month, on the second Wednesday at noon with locations to be announced.

The committee agreed to set up a special fund for the foster children to provide for organ lessons, summer camp, birthday and Christmas gifts. County funds are not available for these, Sweeney said, and added that the unit will accept donations for this fund at the office of the Children's Bureau on 710 Sarah St., Stroudsburg.

Sweeney said there is a continuing need for foster parents.

A life member of the Northampton post, Rooney served with the 515th Parachute Inf. Bn., 15th Airborne Div. in Europe.

In addition to honoring all past commanders of the local post, the banquet will also honor all Vietnam veterans. Barry Schaffer, a Viet vet, will also be there.

Entertainment after the banquet will be provided by Phyllis Beel's Dance and Majorette Studio. Following the entertainment there will be dancing.

Fresh plan car wash for funds

STROUDSBURG — The freshman class at Stroudsburg High School will hold a car wash from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday at the Chevron Station, Dreher Ave. and West Main St.

Profits from the project, which charges 60 cents per car, will be used to cover the cost of class projects.

Stroudsburg motel changes hands

STROUDSBURG — Mr. Norman Gibson and Mr. Hugh J. Lattomus, both of West Chester, assumed control as new owners of the Motel Inn Towne, Stroudsburg, Tuesday.

Gibson, a former owner and manager of a motel in Williamsburg, Va., plans to make his home in the Stroudsburg area.

Lattomus, vice president of F.E. Lucas Company, Washington, D.C., a firm which sells hotels, motels and restaurants across the country, will remain in West Chester where he has a home.

The new owners disclosed that no immediate major changes would take place concerning the operation of the motel. The only change indicated was the construction of a swimming pool.

Both Gibson and Lattomus said the location of the motel will afford tremendous financial opportunities because they felt the Poconos area is on the verge of a tremendous boom because Interstate Route 80 is nearing completion and the Tocks Island project, upon completion, will serve as a great inducement for vacationers in the area.

Both agreed that the Poconos area is fast becoming a four season vacation area as opposed to the seashore which is only a major attraction in summer months.

Fire week highlighted by parade

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Firemen's Assn. will conduct a parade Monday at 7:15 p.m. in cooperation with Fire Prevention Week. Sponsoring the parade will be Acme Hose Co., East Stroudsburg.

The parade will start at Stroudsburg High School and move east on W. Main St., across the interboro bridge, up Brown to Crystal Street, then left to the old post office building, and then to Courtland Street, west to the traffic light and down Day Street to Acme Hose Co. Memorial Hall where the parade will end.

Participating in the parade will be the high school bands from East Stroudsburg, Pleasant Valley, Pocono Mountains, and Stroudsburg.

There will be 17 fire companies represented in the line of march.

Richard Dean, parade chairman, said the parade will move out promptly at 7:15 p.m.

ESSC grid machine leading in east, dominating conference statistics

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg State College is leading the Pennsylvania State Colleges Athletic Football Conference in team offense with 444 yards a game, and in four individual categories.

The Warriors, who conquered defending champion West Chester, 21-14, last Saturday night, also share the top spot with Bloomsburg in the Eastern Division standings, each with 1-0 records.

California and Slippery Rock lead the West with 1-0 marks.

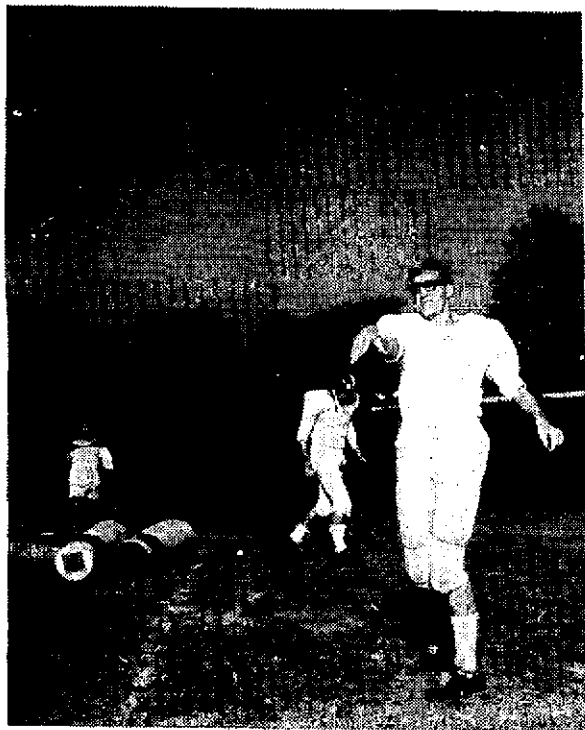

Moreover, Slippery Rock, Bloomsburg and Millersville have achieved first place in three other categories after the first full week of conference action.

East Stroudsburg quarterback Billy Dukett, who scored the tying touchdown in whipping his team from behind a 14-0 deficit, remains out front in total offense with 659 yards for two games. Lock Haven's Danny Rhule is next with 401.

"I still say Dukett should be All-East," said his coach, Charlie Reese, who touted his quarterback after a 432-yard passing performance against Edinboro two weeks ago.

By throwing for 189 yards against West Chester, Dukett upped his league-leading yardage total to 621. Rhule, who runs the option play with expertise for Lock Haven, again is runnerup with 287 yards.

Rhule's second touchdown pass shot the Eagles past California 26-20, but only temporarily on Saturday, as Jeff Petrucci's arm brought the favoured Vulcans on to win in the stretch, 27-26, in a Western Division thriller.

BILL DUKETT—Number one passer

Ed Csenecits, East Stroudsburg's 6-3 end who whispered the bootleg play in his quarterback's ear which tied the West Chester game, leads all pass receivers with 16 catches. He grabbed four Saturday night.

John Pitzer, the East Stroudsburg fullback who hasn't lost a yard in three years, twice banged across from the one last weekend to take the scoring lead with 18 points. But the 195-pounder had to take a back seat to Bloomsburg's Bill Firestone who shot out of nowhere to take the conference rushing lead in one game.

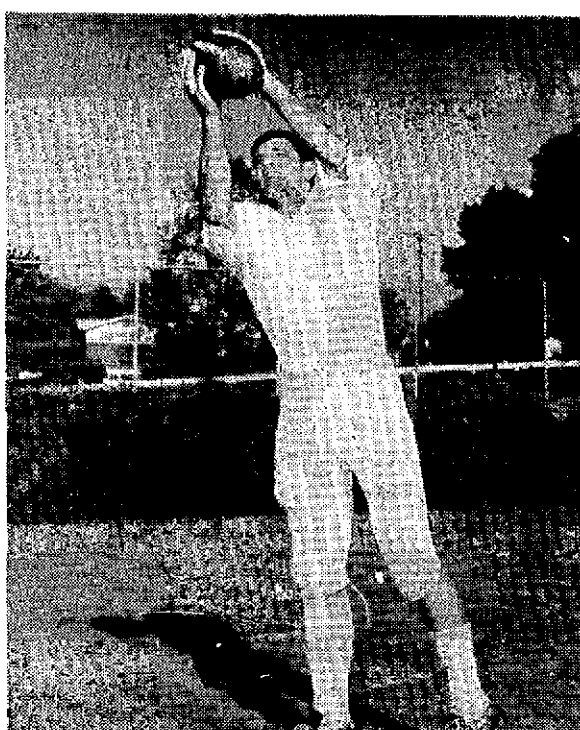

The sophomore-studded Huskies surprised Mansfield, 24-6, and much of the excitement was due to Firestone who was exposed in blatant fashion for the first time. The sleek sophomore dashed 93 yards for one touchdown and wound up with 125 yards and a 10.4 average per carry.

"Our freshman team didn't win a game last year," declared athletic director and former football coach Russ Houk. "But we felt there was some talent there. We haven't seen a running attack like this in years." Which is a nice pat on the back for new coach Jerry Denstarff.

Bloomsburg fumbled six times in losing to Lock Haven the week before.

Karl Bivans' punts were instrumental in providing Millersville with field position in its 7-7 Eastern Division tie with Kutztown. Bivans — who got off the longest punt of the week of 57 yards — leads the conference with a 39.9 average.

Slippery Rock, 16-0, conqueror

of Edinboro in the West, heads the 13-team conference in team defense. They allowed Edinboro only 103 total yards — 22 yards rushing, a Rocket modern (since World War 2) record.

The Rockets paid dearly for their victory. Frank Barnes left the game early in the second half with a shoulder separation after galloping for 105 yards and into third place in the conference rush standings. He will be lost for two or three weeks.

Slippery Rock's Joe Franjione supplied the league's first field goal this season — a 40-yarder. He barely missed one for 45 yards on the next series.

WEST CHESTER — Clarion quarterback Bob Erdeljac is picking up where record-setting Jim Alcorn left off. Erdeljac has hit on 50 of 89 passes for 534 yards and a 58.0 average in three games (two non-league).

In a memo to his squad before the West Chester game, East Stroudsburg coach Charlie Reese wrote: "You must play every play in the game as if it was the biggest play of your life. It may be. This Saturday night comes the most important event of all. A victory can do more for the athletic reputation of your college and yourself than anything else you will do."

The 10, 250 which turned out for the game was a Farrel Stadium record. Over 4,000 were standing or sitting 15-deep around the rim of the field. Another 1,000 were turned away.

West Chester coach Bob Mitten said: "The breaks came out about even. And they did a great job of coming back." Stroud trailed by 14-0 at one time.

Slippery Rock quarterback Tom Bell, who came off the bench to throw two touchdown passes at Edinboro quarter-backed Sharon Hill High School to a 10-0 record in 1968.

Millersville coach George Katcher advised some players to "put a little more into it or there will be some changes" before the 7-7 tie with a young Kutztown team that had three 220-pounders in its front defensive four, and an offensive line that numbered 250, 240, 215, 210 and 200.

Jed's Tidbits

By TED WISMER
Sports Editor

The fact that we picked East Stroudsburg State's win over West Chester took some of the sting out of last week's rather poor showing of 14-7.

For the season this corner is now 29-16-1 which isn't anything to write home about.

And they don't get any easier this weekend with the likes of Stroudsburg-Palmerton; Easton-Dicuff; Lehigh-Slatinton and Wilson-Hellertown just to name a few.

But here goes anyway:

FRIDAY NIGHT

STROUDSBURG OVER PALMERTON—Both teams are looking for their first win of the season. But the Mounties looked like a different team last Saturday following their first TD of the season and get the nod for that reason.

BANGOR OVER EAST STROUDSBURG—A repeat performance by the Cavalier defense could make this game end up in a scoreless tie. Neither team has found a scoring punch yet but the Slaters get the vote because of their outstanding defensive unit.

JIM THORPE OVER POCONO MOUNTAIN—The Cardinals are having their troubles on defense (82 points allowed in two games) and the Olympians scored 46 points last week against Pleasant Valley.

SALISBURY OVER PLEASANT VALLEY—The Bears open their home season with all three quarterbacks on the injury list. The Falcons have dropped two straight after an opening win.

SLATINGTON OVER LEHIGHTON—We can't see anyone stopping VanNorman and Lilly two weeks in a row.

NORTHWESTERN OVER CARDINAL BRENNAN—Joe Czutno gets his first win?

PARKLAND OVER CENTRAL CATHOLIC—Not unless the Trojans have a tremendous letdown after last week's win over Slatinton.

PHILLIPSBURG OVER BRICK TOWNSHIP—The Stateliners present new head coach Mickey Frinzi with his second easy victory.

DIERUFF OVER EASTON—Both teams are unbeaten and feature explosive offenses. Jeep Bednarik gets his first win over his former school.

NESHAMINY OVER ALLEN—Little to choose from between two weaker members of the Big 7.

SATURDAY

ESSC OVER KUTZTOWN—The Warriors are in the top spot now and they intend to remain there. Kutztown has been a stumbling block for ESSC over the years but there's something extra on the Red and Black's side this year.

PEN ARGYL OVER CATASAUQUA—The Knights make it two in a row but it won't be easy. Pen Argyl took a good physical beating last week and in the past have taken a pounding against the Rough Riders.

PIUS X OVER JIM THORPE—The Royals have suddenly found an offense to match a rough defense.

NORTHAMPTON OVER EMMAUS—The Kids return to Lehigh Valley action and get their first win of the season against a not-too-impressive Hornet 11.

NAZARETH OVER WHITEHALL—One of the easier games on the Eagle schedule.

HELLERTOWN OVER WILSON—The vote goes to the Panthers' impressive offense.

PENNSBURG OVER LIBERTY—Liberty couldn't get by cross-town rival Bethlehem Catholic last week.

LAFAYETTE OVER HOFSTRA—The Leopards prove their win over Columbia was no fluke.

LEHIGH OVER WITTENBERG—The Engineers go above .500 again.

WILKES OVER MORAVIAN—Another long afternoon for the Hounds.

HAVERFORD OVER MUHLENBERG—The Mules lose another high scoring contest.

Concannon lost 6 to 8 weeks

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Bears said Monday that quarterback Jack Concannon will be out of action for six to eight weeks because of a broken collarbone suffered in Sunday's game.

A Bears' spokesman said X-rays confirmed that Concannon's left clavicle was fractured. He was injured late in the second period, against the Minnesota Vikings.

Army, Navy among losers

Purdue's challengers could have scary afternoon

NEW YORK (UPI)—It'll be plenty scary for Purdue's leading challengers among the nation's top 10 college football teams this week.

Purdue figures to retain No. 1 by giving Northwestern another banging around but at least one of the three teams in hottest pursuit may take a tumble.

Having issued the warning, we now pick the challengers—Southern California over Miami of Florida, Penn State over West Virginia and UCLA over Syracuse.

Starting closest to home:

Tennessee 21, Rice 14—Rich Flowers is regaining his football legs.

Texas 21, Oklahoma State 14—Way overdue.

Southern Methodist 28, North Carolina State 23—Hixson is busiest passer in the business.

Also: Houston 14 over Cincinnati, Texas Tech 14 over Colorado State, Arizona six over University of Texas, El Paso, Memphis State eight over North Texas State, Tulsa seven over Southern Illinois.

The Far West
Southern California 17, Miami 14—Simpson may need more help.

Also: Utah one over Washington State, California 20 over San Jose State, Utah State six over Montana, West Texas State eight over Montana State.

Air Force 24, Stanford 21—Risky with Stanford's passing whiz.

A make-believe trip through the land of Egypt can be very rewarding for those who collect buttons. The buttons above date back to 1866.

Antique Lore

By Ruth Kay

STROUDSBURG — If you are one of those interested in history you will find a wealth of information in buttons. The button collector with a fondness for armchair travel "has it made" as the saying goes. He needs only to decide where he wants to go, and the buttons will transport him there.

A trained eye is essential for the button collector, he must be able to recognize good design, color and workmanship.

On a tour of Paris he will discover such points of interest as the Eiffel Tower. In Egypt button designers "traveled" to the Nile and recorded what they saw. In Rome, portraits of emperors from Augustus to Constantine the Great and so on.

State disabled retain U.S. lead

WILKES-BARRE — The Pennsylvania Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation for the seventh consecutive year has led the nation in the number of handicapped persons restored to active and useful work with 14,091 disabled individuals rehabilitated in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1968.

Secretary of Labor and Industry John K. Tabor, who is Chairman of the State Board of Vocational Rehabilitation, made the announcement of Pennsylvania's leadership in Harrisburg. He said that Pennsylvania had received notice from the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare of the record achievement.

The national total of rehabilitations in the reported fiscal year was 207,918 handicapped persons. Following Pennsylvania, in order of rank, were Illinois, California, Georgia, Florida, New York, Texas, North Carolina, and Wisconsin.

Pennsylvania has led the nation in the rehabilitation of disabled individuals for 10 of the last 12 years and was second the other two years.

Blue Cross unit pleas for hike

HARRISBURG (AP) — Capital Blue Cross, serving central Pennsylvania, went before acting Insurance Commissioner A. John Smither Tuesday in an attempt to justify its request for an over-all 19 per cent increase in hospitalization insurance rates.

Richard D. Rife, president of the nonprofit prepayment plan, said hospital costs, although relatively low in the middle third of the state, were rising more than 1 per cent per month despite efforts to keep expenses down.

"We believe that the proposed rate schedule is sound, equitable and above all, the minimum that can be safely utilized during 1969," Rife testified before Smither and a panel of key officials of the State Insurance Department.

As outlined by Smither, the proposed increase, effective Jan. 1, would raise rates of 93,814 direct pay subscribers by 13 per cent and 234,332 group subscribers 23 per cent, netting Capital Blue Cross an additional $3.2 million annually.

Blue Cross subscribers in 19 counties would be affected by the proposed rate increase, the counties being Adams, Berks, Centre, Columbia, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Fulton, Juniata, Lancaster, Lebanon.

A center of button making in America was the Shaker colony at New Lebanon, New York, where buttons were made as early as 1789. The buttons used on brethren's garments, jackets, coats and sleeve buttons were made of simple design and excellent workmanship.

The Cheshire Mfg. Co., in Connecticut manufactured buttons between 1890-91. These buttons are of sentimental interest and a collection has no lasting worth except for what historical record might be connected with it. Their subject matter includes, kittens in a basket, the cow jumping over the moon, Jenny Lind, hands and flowers, and literary figures as Little Lord Fauntleroy.

With buttons, as with other porcelain, the name Dresden has become associated with a style of decoration which originated at the Royal Meissen factory. An unusual feature of Meissen buttons is their body construction. The top being flat, the back rounded and the center hollow. The back is pierced with four eyelets, large enough to carry thread or cord.

Women voters distribute book

STROUDSBURG — The League of Women Voters of the Stroudsburgs is distributing to ten Monroe County school and community libraries free copies of a timely new book, "Choosing the President."

This reference to one of the most important happenings in American politics has been published this year by the League of Women Voters of the U. S. It explains step by step just how the President of the United States is nominated and elected. Highly readable, yet carefully documented, it is of interest not only to the average citizen who "wants to know", but also to teachers, students, clubs, church and community groups, businessmen, and public officials.

"Choosing the President" has been given by the United States Mission to the United Nations to all delegations of member nations, has been sent by the U. S. Information Agency to their libraries overseas, and has been distributed by the Book-of-the-Month Club as a pro bono publico—a book chosen because of its unusual social and historical importance.

Part One of "Choosing the President" answers such questions as "how are delegates to the national convention chosen?", "how many electoral votes does my state have?", "what happens if a presidential nominee dies before election day?", and "if no presidential candidate receives a majority of the electoral college's votes, how is the president chosen?"

Part II gives facts and figures illustrating the choosing process, including qualifications for the presidency and vice presidency and operational details about the national committee, convention committees, and convention voting. It also discusses campaign costs and fund raising, and traces the evolution of the nominating system.

"Choosing the President" may be ordered for $1 prepaid directly from the League of Women Voters of the U.S., 1200 17th Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036, or from the League of Women Voters of the Stroudsburgs, Mrs. Frank Dressler, 517 Scott Street, Stroudsburg, Pa. 18360.

Partners must ease ties to firms gone public

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Philadelphia investment banking firm has set a precedent by requiring all its partners to resign from directorships of public-owned companies.

W. W. Keen Butcher, managing partner of Butcher & Sherrerd stock brokers and investment bankers, said recently this policy had nothing to do with last week's resignation of Howard Butcher III, the firm's senior partner, from the board of Penn Central Co.

Nor does it result, said Butcher, from a stockholder suit filed in New York by Simon Kaminsky, a New York accountant.

said Butcher. "No inside information was provided to the Butcher & Sherrerd organization by Howard Butcher III or Penn Central. No member of this firm sold any of his stock."

New fishing

WALVIS BAY, South West Africa (AP) — Hennie Venter was swimming at the beach when a 20-pound steenbras, a fish found locally, attacked him in water about six feet deep. Venter punched and dazed the fish, dragged it on the beach and presented it to the local hotel where it fed the full guest quota.

Dropouts high among jobless

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Facts prove it: high school dropouts are stupid. Not because they can't learn, but because they don't want to!

The Pennsylvania Bureau of Employment Security reports that there are three times as many jobless high school dropouts than those who stick it out and get a diploma.

In the 1967-68 academic year, there were 23,613 dropouts in Pennsylvania — and most of these, 16 and 17 years old, just couldn't get any work.

Daniel J. Little, manager of the bureau's Philadelphia office where more than half of the state's dropouts are located, warns that education is a work requirement.

"School helps prepare you for jobs that will bring lifetime rewards if you are ready for the opportunities," says Little.

"High school dropouts often become drifters, going from one unskilled job to another. They also are the first to be laid off in any job cutback."

If there is any message for education in Pennsylvania's public schools, as a new semester begins, this is it.

Erie barber seeks harmless pet boa

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Pete Cerami hears a noise in the false ceiling of his barbershop, pulls out a flashlight and starts searching.

But, so far, the hunt has been fruitless—he can't find his pet boa constrictor, which disappeared over the weekend.

Cerami bought the seven foot, 40-pound snake Saturday afternoon, brought his grandchildren down to his shop to see it Saturday night, but it was gone from its glass cage in a back room.

"The little fellow is very friendly and wouldn't harm a flea," says the 54-year-old Cerami. "If anybody finds him, all they have to do is pick him up by the back of the neck and call me or the police."

DID YOU KNOW?...

The first baby born in a hospital in North America, before the United States itself was born, was on July 17, 1765 at Philadelphia's Pennsylvania Hospital, still the oldest in the nation. It was "a female child of Martha Robinson, a poor patient..." Despite this the hospital didn't organize a maternity department until 37 years later. Today Pennsylvania Hospital has 3,000 births annually...

PEOPLE & PLACES:

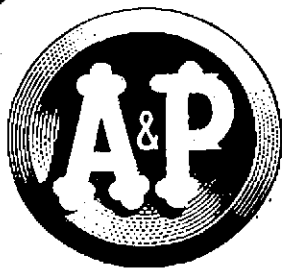

The tiny hamlet of Ickesburg recently celebrated its 150th birthday—and all 250 residents participated. Ickesburg is at the bottom of the Tuscarora Mountains, 40 miles north of Harrisburg in Perry County. Frank Neff, a 90-year-old resident of Sunbury, says he was only seven but remembers when Thomas Edison produced the world's first commercial electric lighting in Sunbury. "We lived immediately across the street from the station where Edison was experimenting," said Neff, "and my mother put me at the front window so I could watch him..." The Harrisburg School District has organized a Department of Intergroup Education to help bridge the so-called "communications gap" between people of all ages, cultures, races and religions...

SPIRIT OF '76:

There's an Army-Navy Museum, devoted exclusively to the Revolutionary War period, now part of the tourist trap in Philadelphia's Independence National Historical Park. It's Pemberton House, built in 1775, and located one block from Independence Hall, centerpiece of America's most historical mile.

The buck was much cheaper when Joseph Pemberton built his home. He spent $4,000—a mansion-sized price then.

The government paid $400,000 to renovate the red-brick colonial structure which Gov. Raymond P. Shafer said will "serve as a reminder of what America was and what she is to be."
